About Dr Peter Tran

Dr Tran has procedural specific training in cosmetic surgery and a Fellowship of the Australasian College of Cosmetic Surgery and Medicine (ACCSM) in Surgery. He also holds a Surgical Fellowship of the American Academy of Cosmetic Surgery (FAACS), having been trained by leading Plastic and Cosmetic surgeons worldwide, he is skilled in addressing complex aesthetic surgical problems without compromising patient safety and care.

His philosophy is that each of his patients are cared for to the highest standards, with the utmost professionalism. This starts from the initial consult, through surgery and to the post-operative period, practicing up-to-date evidence-based medicine throughout their treatment journey. He has particular interests in abdominoplasty (tummy tuck surgery) and body contouring surgery and has authored journal articles on Dissection Techniques in Abdominoplasty published in the American Journal of Cosmetic Surgery.

Dr Tran considers his patient's well-being the number one priority, as such was the ACCSM representative to the Australian Breast Device Registry (ABDR) Steering Committee, a Commonwealth Government Health initiative which tracks the long-term safety and performance of breast implants Australia wide. In addition he sits on the advisory committee for high-risk cosmetic surgery data collection, and holds elected appointments as Vice President at the Australasian College of Cosmetic Surgery and Medicine, Chair of the ACCSM Cosmetic Surgery Advocacy Committee, and Member of the Medical Advisory Committee (MAC) at Waratah Private Hospital. In these roles he is actively involved in advocacy, policy and regulation of Cosmetic Surgery.
